Miro Spönemann

General Manager
TypeFox GmbH

Miro Spönemann is a committer and project lead for several Eclipse projects and co-leads TypeFox, a company specializing in engineering tools and open source technology.

Miro started to get involved in open source development while researching graph layout algorithms and their application to graphical modeling at the University of Kiel.

He has been contributing to the Eclipse community by kick starting new projects, giving presentations at several events, and supporting the transfer of the Open VSX Registry to the Eclipse Foundation. Innovation, strategy and community work are at the heart of his interest.

Miro has been representing TypeFox as the participant representative of the Steering Committee since February, 2021, and looks forward to continuing to represent all participant members for another term.